This year marks BPC's return to the physical realm after the 2021 online edition. Together with our host, the Port of Gdynia, we will look at many topics currently shaping the landscape of the maritime industry.

Recent geopolitical shifts and the associated impact on energy security and trade in the Baltic Sea region, coupled with Europe's ongoing effort to make the transport sector more sustainable via a range of green initiatives, such as the European Green Deal and the Fit for 55 package, will be at the centre of discussion in Gdynia in September.

Other topics will include sustainable shipping fuels, green energy-related investments in ports (offshore wind), and the most exciting tech trends to keep an eye on.

We are incredibly eager to see you all once again, gathered in a bustling conference hall. The BPC returns to the physical realm, and we can't imagine it happening without you!

Grab your calendars, mark the 7-8 September 2022 and book your flights, one of the Baltic Sea region's most important events is where you want to be this year! ■
